INFORMATION, AUTHORIZATION, & CONSENT TO TREATMENT

(Revised: 02/04/2020)

Thank you for trusting and selecting Marietta Roswell Counseling, LLC (MRC) as your practice of choice, and we are sincerely looking forward to assisting you. This document is designed to inform you about what you can expect from MRC regarding confidentiality, emergencies, and several other details regarding your treatment. Although providing this document is part of an ethical obligation of professional counseling, more importantly, it is part of MRC's commitment to you to keep you fully informed of every part of your therapeutic experience. Please know that your relationship with MRC and your therapist is a collaborative one, and we welcome any questions, comments, or suggestions regarding your course of therapy at any time.

About Your Therapist

Debbie Weitz, Ed.S., NCC, LAPC, is Licensed Associate Professional Counselor in the State of Georgia, and graduated from The University of Georgia with a Bachelor of Arts degree in International Affairs, and a Master of Science degree in Counseling and Human Systems from Florida State University. She has experience working in a variety of settings, including a Career Center, Technical College, and Public School System. Debbie is currently under supervision as she prepares to begin working toward her state licensure as a Licensed Professional Counselor. She primarily employs the approach of Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, but has experience working with and may implement other modalities as needed. Debbie works with individuals of all ages and backgrounds, utilizes Prepare Enrich to aid couples in developing healthy relationships and is passionate about helping to make a difference in the lives of her clients and community.

Theoretical Views & Client Participation

It is MRC's belief that as people become more aware and accepting of themselves, they are more capable of finding a sense of peace and contentment in their lives. However, self-awareness and self-acceptance are goals that may take a lengthy amount of time to achieve. Some clients need only a few sessions to achieve these goals, whereas others may require months or even years of therapy. As a client, you are in complete control, and you may end your relationship with me at any point.

In order for therapy to be most successful, it is important for you to take an active role. This means working on the things you and your therapist talk about both during and between sessions. This also means avoiding any mind-altering substances like alcohol or non-prescription drugs for at least eight hours prior to your therapy sessions. Generally, the more of yourself you are willing to invest, the greater the return.

Furthermore, it is MRC's policy to only see clients who we believe have the capacity to resolve their own problems with our assistance. It is MRC's intention to empower you in your growth process to the degree that you are capable of facing life's challenges in the future without us. MRC also does not believe in creating dependency or prolonging therapy if the therapeutic interventions do not seem to be helping. If this is the case, we will direct you to other resources that will be of assistance to you. Your personal development is MRC's main priority, second only to your personal safety. We encourage you to let us know if you feel that terminating therapy or transferring to another therapist would be beneficial at any time. MRC's goal is to facilitate healing and growth, and we are very committed to helping you in productive ways to produce maximum benefit. Your therapist truly hopes to facilitate open communication about any of these decisions. If at any point you are unable to keep your appointments, or we don't hear from you for one month, MRC will close your chart. However, as long as your therapist still has space in his or her schedule, reopening your chart and resuming treatment is always an option.

Confidentiality & Records

Your communications with your therapist will become part of a clinical record of treatment, and it is referred to as Protected Health Information (PHI). Your PHI will be kept in a file stored in a locked cabinet in our locked office. There are a few other people who may also have access to your PHI. The clinical director, Scott Pennington, may review your case with your therapist in the interest of providing you with the best possible care. As a licensed clinician, Debbie Weitz is also required to keep all information about clients confidential. Additionally, one of our administrative assistants or our business manager may need to access your chart on occasion for business purposes only. This might be to check for dates of services for billing purposes, to ascertain that all of the HIPAA required documentation is located in the chart (occasional audit of charts), or some other absolutely necessary business practice. However, please know this would never include reading any of your clinical notes. Additionally, each business associate has signed a HIPAA enforced confidentiality contract which spells out how confidential records must be handled.

Your therapist will always keep everything you say to him or her completely confidential, with the following exceptions: (1) you direct your therapist to tell someone else and you sign a "Release of Information" form; (2) your therapist determines that you are a danger to yourself or to others; (3) you report information about the abuse of a child, an elderly person, or a disabled individual who may require protection; or (4) your therapist is ordered by a judge to disclose information. In the latter case, your therapist's professional credential's does provide him or her with the ability to uphold what is legally termed "privileged communication." Privileged communication is your right as a client to have a confidential relationship with a counselor. If for some unusual reason a judge were to order the disclosure of your private information, this order can be appealed. We cannot guarantee that the appeal will be sustained, but we will do everything in our power to keep what you say confidential. As an Licensed Associate Professional Counselor, Debbie is required to participate in Professional Supervision with a Certified Professional Counseling Supervisor. During supervision, Debbie is required to disclose aspects of the counseling relationship she maintains with her clients. However, all client information is kept confidential. Debbie is under the Direction of Scott Pennington, LPC, who may be reached at (678) 642-1111, and is under the Supervision of Dr. Kristy Christopher Holloway, Ph.D., who may be reached at 678-829-8143.

Working with couples and families:

The couple or the family as an entity is the client and the Counselor is not providing individual therapy for either half of the couple or for any one member of the family during couples or family sessions. However, additional individual therapy sessions may be provided if needed to supplement couple or family sessions. The Counselor will not be a "secret keeper" nor will the Counselor facilitate secret keeping. If significant information is revealed in an individual session that the Counselor feels another party needs to be told, the Counselor will require it be brought up in the next session together, so it may be therapeutically addressed. If the individual refuses to reveal the Counselor recommended subject, the Counselor has the right to terminate the counseling relationship and refer the couple or family to another Counselor for treatment.

Working with children and adolescents:

Though legally the parent(s) or legal guardian(s) of child and adolescent clients are the client and confidentiality lies with the client, in order to establish and preserve the essential relationship and setting for a child's therapy, your therapist honors what the child does or says in our sessions as confidential while providing parents and/or legal guardians summaries of treatment goals, plan, and progress as well as recommendations.

Emergency Records Access:

In the case of my death or major medical incapacitation, all of my records will be accessible to Scott Pennington, LPC. 2850 Johnson Ferry Rd, Suite 250. Marietta, GA 30062, phone: (678) 642.1111.

Professional Relationship

Your relationship with your therapist is different from most relationships. It may differ in how long it lasts, the objectives, or the topics discussed. It must also be limited to only the relationship of therapist and client. If you and your therapist were to interact in any other ways, you would then have a "dual relationship," which could prove to be harmful to you in the long run and is, therefore, unethical in the mental health profession. Dual relationships can set up conflicts between the therapist's interests and the client's interests, and then the client's (your) interests might not be put first. In order to offer all of our clients the best care, your therapist's judgment needs to be unselfish and purely focused on your needs. This is why your relationship with your therapist must remain professional in nature.

Additionally, there are important differences between therapy and friendship. Friends may see your position only from their personal viewpoints and experiences. Friends may want to find quick and easy solutions to your problems so that they can feel helpful. These short-term solutions may not be in your long-term best interest. Friends do not usually follow up on their advice to see whether it was useful. Your therapist may need you to do what they advise. A therapist offers you choices and helps you choose what is best for you. A therapist helps you learn how to solve problems better and make better decisions. A therapist's responses to your situation are based on tested theories and methods of change.

There is another dual relationship that therapists are ethically required to avoid. This is providing therapy while also providing a legal opinion. These are considered mutually exclusive unless you hire a therapist specifically for a legal opinion, which is considered "forensic" work and not therapy. Our passion is not in forensic work but in providing you with the best therapeutic care possible. Therefore, by signing this document, you acknowledge that your therapist will be providing therapy only and not forensic services. You also understand that this means your therapist will not participate in custody evaluations, depositions, court proceedings, or any other forensic activities.

You should also know that therapists are required to keep the identity of their clients confidential. As much as your therapist would like to, for your confidentiality he or she will not address you in public unless you speak to him or her first. Your therapist also must decline any invitation to attend gatherings with your family or friends. Lastly, when your therapy is completed, your therapist will not be able to be a friend to you like your other friends. In sum, it is the duty of your therapist to always maintain a professional role. Please note that these guidelines are not meant to be discourteous in any way, they are strictly for your long-term protection.

Statement Regarding Ethics, Client Welfare & Safety

MRC assures you that our services will be rendered in a professional manner consistent with the ethical standards of the State of Georgia. If, at any time, you feel that your therapist is not performing in an ethical or professional manner, we ask that you please let him or her know immediately. If the two of you are unable to resolve your concern, please contact Scott Pennington, LPC, Clinical Director at 678-642-1111.

Due to the very nature of psychotherapy, as much as we would like to guarantee specific results regarding your therapeutic goals, we are unable to do so. However, your therapist, with your participation, will work to achieve the best possible results for you. Please also be aware that changes made in therapy may affect other people in your life. For example, an increase in your assertiveness may not always be welcomed by others. It is our intention to help you manage changes in your interpersonal relationships as they arise, but it is important for you to be aware of this possibility, nonetheless.

Additionally, at times people find that they feel somewhat worse when they first start therapy before they begin to feel better. This may occur as you begin discussing certain sensitive areas of your life. However, a topic usually isn't sensitive unless it needs attention. Therefore, discovering the discomfort is actually a success. Once you and your therapist define your specific treatment needs and the particular modalities that work best for you, help is generally on the way.

For the safety of all our clients, their accompanying family members and children, and our therapists and staff, MRC maintains a zero-tolerance weapons policy for clients. No weapon of any kind is permitted on the premises, including guns, explosives, ammunition, knives, swords, razor blades, pepper spray, garrotes, or anything that could be harmful to yourself or others. Any and all representatives, contractors or agents of MRC reserve the right to contact law enforcement officials and/or terminate treatment with any client who violates our weapons policy.

TeleMental Health Statement

TeleMental Health is defined as follows:

“TeleMental Health means the mode of delivering services via technology-assisted media, such as but not limited to, a telephone, video, internet, a smartphone, tablet, PC desktop system or other electronic means using appropriate encryption technology for electronic health information. TeleMental Health facilitates client self-management and support for clients and includes synchronous interactions and asynchronous store and forward transfers.” (Georgia Code 135-11-.01).

TeleMental Health is a relatively new concept despite the fact that many therapists have been using technology-assisted media for years. Breaches of confidentiality over the past decade have made it evident that Personal Health Information (PHI), as it relates to technology, needs an extra level of protection. Additionally, there are several other factors that need to be considered regarding the delivery of TeleMental Health services in order to provide you with the highest level of care. Therefore, we have completed the State of Georgia's minimum required specialization training in TeleMental Health. MRC has also developed several policies and protective measures to assure your PHI remains confidential. These are discussed below:

Your Responsibilities for Confidentiality & TeleMental Health:

Please communicate only through devices that you know are secure as described above. It is also your responsibility to choose a secure location to interact with technology-assisted media and to be aware that family, friends, employers, co-workers, strangers, and hackers could either overhear your communications or have access to the technology that you are interacting with. Additionally, you agree not to record any TeleMental Health sessions.

Please initial that you have read this page _____

In Case of Technology Failure:

During a TeleMental Health session, you and your therapist could encounter a technological failure. The most reliable backup plan is to contact one another via telephone. Please make sure you have a phone with you, and your therapist has that phone number.

If you and your therapist get disconnected from a video conferencing or chat session, end and restart the session. If you are unable to reconnect within ten minutes, please call your therapist.

If you and your therapist are on a phone session and you get disconnected, please call your therapist back or contact her or him to schedule another session. If the issue is due to your therapist's phone service, and the two of you are not able to reconnect, she/he will not charge you for that session.

Limitations of TeleMental Health Therapy Services:

TeleMental Health services should not be viewed as a complete substitute for therapy conducted in our office, unless there are extreme circumstances that prevent you from attending therapy in person. It is an alternative form of therapy or adjunct therapy, and it involves limitations. Primarily, there is a risk of misunderstanding one another when communication lacks visual or auditory cues. For example, if video quality is lacking, your therapist might not see a tear in your eye. Or, if audio quality is lacking, he or she might not hear the crack in your voice that he or she could have easily picked up if you were in our office.

There may also be a disruption to the service (e.g., phone gets cut off or video drops). This can be frustrating and interrupt the normal flow of personal interaction.

Please know that we have the utmost respect and positive regard for you and your wellbeing. We would never do or say anything intentionally to hurt you in any way, and MRC strongly encourages you to let your therapist know if something she or he has done or said upset you. MRC invites you to keep the communication with your therapist open at all times to reduce any possible harm.

Face-to Face Requirement:

If you and your therapist agree that TeleMental Health services are the primary way that you and your therapist choose to conduct sessions, your therapist may require one face-to-face meeting at the onset of treatment. We prefer for this initial meeting to take place in our office. If that is not possible, we can utilize video conferencing as described above. During this initial session, your therapist will require you to show a valid picture ID and another form of identity verification such a credit card in your name. At this time, you will also choose a password, phrase, or number which you will use to identify yourself in all future sessions. This procedure prevents another person from posing as you.

The Different Forms of Technology-Assisted Media Explained

Telephone via Landline:

It is important for you to know that even landline telephones may not be completely secure and confidential. There is a possibility that someone could overhear or even intercept your conversations with special technology. Individuals who have access to your telephone or your telephone bill may be able to determine who you have talked to, who initiated that call, and how long the conversation lasted. If you have a landline and you provided us with that phone number, we may contact you on this line from our own landline in our office or from a cell phone, typically only for purposes of setting up an appointment if needed. If this is not an acceptable way to contact you, please let your therapist know. Telephone conversations (other than just setting up appointments) are billed at your therapist's hourly rate.

Cell phones:

In addition to landlines, cell phones may not be completely secure or confidential. There is also a possibility that someone could overhear or intercept your conversations. Be aware that individuals who have access to your cell phone or your cell phone bill may be able to see who you have talked to, who initiated that call, how long the conversation was, and where each party was located when that call occurred. However, we realize that most people have and utilize a cell phone. We may also use a cell phone to contact you, typically only for purposes of setting up an appointment if needed. Additionally, your therapist may keep your phone number in his/her cell phone, which is password protected. If this is a problem, please let your therapist know, and you he/she will be glad to discuss other options. Telephone conversations (other than just setting up appointments) are billed at your therapist's hourly rate.

Text Messaging:

Text messaging is not a secure means of communication and may compromise your confidentiality. However, MRC realizes that many people prefer to text because it is a quick way to convey information. Nonetheless, please know that it is MRC's policy to utilize this means of communication primarily for appointment confirmations. Please do not bring up any therapeutic content via text to prevent compromising your confidentiality. You also need to know that MRC is required to keep a copy or summary of all texts as part of your clinical record that address anything related to therapy.

Text messaging (other than scheduling or confirming appointments) is billed at the therapist's hourly rate for the time they spend reading and responding to each text message, with a minimum of the Extended Session Rate (rounded to quarter hour) as outlined in the Structure and Cost of Sessions section of this Client Agreement and Informed Consent document. If you are in a crisis, please do not communicate this to your therapist, via text messaging because he or she may not see it in a timely matter. Instead, please review below the section "Emergency Procedures."

We strongly suggest that you only communicate through a device that you know is safe and technologically secure (e.g., has a firewall, anti-virus software installed, is password protected, not accessing the internet through a public wireless network, etc.).

Recommendations to Websites (Sites), Applications (Apps) or Products:

During the course of your treatment, your therapist may recommend that you visit certain websites for pertinent information or products for self-help. They may also recommend certain apps that could be of assistance to you and enhance your treatment. Please be aware that websites, apps, and product sites may have tracking devices that allow automated software or other entities to know that you've visited these sites or applications. They may even utilize your information to attempt to sell you other products. Additionally, anyone who has access to the device you used to visit these sites/apps /products may be able to see that you have been to these sites by viewing the history on your device. Therefore, it is your responsibility to decide if you would like this information as adjunct to your treatment or if you prefer that your therapist not make these recommendations. Electronic Transfer of PHI for Certain Credit Card Transactions:

MRC utilizes Elavon Inc., Converge (sm) as the company that processes your credit card information. Elavon Inc., Converge (sm) may send the credit card-holder a text or an email receipt indicating that you used that credit card for our services, the date you used it, and the amount that was charged. This notification is usually set up two different ways - either upon your request at the time the card is run or automatically. Your credit card will be processed as a transaction by Marietta Roswell Counseling, LLC, and the name on the charge will appear as Marietta Roswell Counseling, LLC. Please know that it is your responsibility to know if you or the credit card-holder has the automatic receipt notification set up in order to maintain your confidentiality if you do not want a receipt sent via text or email.

Communication Response Time

MRC's practice is an outpatient facility, and we are set up to accommodate individuals who are reasonably safe and resourceful. We do not carry a beeper nor are available at all times. If, at any time, this does not feel like sufficient support, please inform your therapist and they can discuss additional resources or transfer your case to a therapist or clinic with 24-hour availability. We will return phone calls, texts, email, etc., within 24 hours. However, we do not return calls or any form of communication on weekends, holidays or during vacations. If you are having a mental health emergency and need immediate assistance, please follow the instructions below:
